FROM THE WORTHY PRESIDENT:

It is my honor to be your president. I have been on a steep learning curve about what that actually means. The biggest concern is the club's financial status. There are the day-to-day expenses like electricity, garbage collection, insurance, taxes, etc.—not to mention major costs like a new oven, parking lot improvements, etc. We all need to work together to make those things happen.

I look forward to serving you and am always open to suggestions on how to make this club a great success.

We are also looking to fulfill the Chaplin role. Please let me know if you are interested or if you want to nominate someone.

—Sandy

FROM THE TRUSTEES:

At the Eagles, we're more than just a club—we're a family. Our bartenders work hard to make sure everyone feels welcome, served, and safe. A kind word, a smile, and a little patience go a long way in keeping our club the warm, friendly place we all love.

As members, let's remember what it means to be an Eagle: respect, kindness, and looking out for one another. Treat our staff and fellow members the way you'd like to be treated—because that's how we keep our Aerie strong.

Together, we make the Midland Eagles a place people are proud to call their home away from home.

HOW TO WINTERIZE A MOTORCYCLE FOR STORAGE

A proper motorcycle winterization checklist helps ensure your motorcycle remains in good condition and is ready for use once the warmer weather returns.

Here's a step-by-step guide for how to store motorcycle for winter:

Fluids

Freshen up those fluids. That means all of them: motor oil, clutch, brake, and coolant.

Although, this depends on how long it's been since the last time you changed your fluids. If the last time you changed your clutch and brake fluid was a month ago, and you've driven a few hundred miles, stick to changing the oil.

Changing fluids regularly is essential because they contain contaminants from regular usage, which become corrosive over time and can destroy rubber seals. In addition, the DOT4 brake fluid absorbs water and needs to be changed every two years.

FROM THE EAGLE RIDERS:

Change The Oil

The last thing you want is your motorcycle sitting idle all winter, filled to the brim with oil contaminated with solvents and sediments. It might not run if the bearings have been corroded or damaged.

Changing the oil is a vital and simple step to take to avoid forking out money down the road.

Maintaining The Battery

How to store a motorcycle battery for winter? Some riders recommend starting their bike every week during the winter and letting it run. This is not a good idea. A much better solution, however, is to clean the battery electrodes and hook them up to a battery tender (or trickle charger) for the entire duration of the winter. Not only should you use a battery tender during the winter—but one should be used all the time, urges Nagy.

If you properly winterize your motorcycle battery, it will help extend the longevity of the battery. Harley-Davidson® tenders start at $39 and go up to $129. Nagy uses one priced in the middle.

Buy A FOB Battery To Have At The Ready

While we are on batteries, if your bike won't start in the spring, it may be for one of two reasons: you forgot your pin or need to replace your FOB battery.

There's nothing you can do about it, but your FOB battery will attempt to communicate with your bike all winter. By the time spring rolls around, you'll inevitably need to replace it.

You should keep one in the drawer next to your bike.

Check Your Tires

Check for even wear on your tires, ensure they have enough tread remaining. Ensure the tires are not worn to the extent that the wear bars are exposed. If you have any questions, contact your dealer. Also, check their inflation with an accurate gauge. Your owner's manual and VIN label lists the proper tire inflation pressures. You can put your bike on front and rear stands, lifts, or dollies to keep your motorcycle upright all winter. This will also relieve pressure on the tires.

Be safe out there.
