EAGLES 2110

OCTOBER 2025

September Recap

Meeting with our Receiver, Tony:

Our scheduled meeting with our receiver, Tony, on September 23rd had to be canceled due to unforeseen circumstances. We're working to get this rescheduled soon so that Tony can provide a full update on the club's financials and overall status.

In addition, we're actively exploring new ways to raise funds and strengthen the club's financial position. We welcome and encourage input from all members—if you have ideas or suggestions for potential fundraising opportunities or revenue-generating activities, please share them with the board.

From the Eagle Riders President

Hello Eagle Riders and Midland Eagle members,

I'm writing this as I'm at Cycle-Moore camping for the motorcycle camp weekend and it was already a wonderful start to the weekend. We had a nice 2 hour ride up with a little sprinkles on the way but still great ride. Meet up with friends that we only see up here once a year and spent the evening catching up and building that camaraderie that comes from being a brother.

The Eagle rider will be meeting throughout the winter this year as most of us do not head south so every first Tuesday we will meet.

Here is some info on how to store your bike for the winter, I hope you find it useful:

As the days shorten and a chill whispers through the air, it is time to tenderly prepare your motorcycle for its winter hibernation. Entrusting your beloved two-wheeled companion to the winter's embrace is not taken lightly, and that is where the expertise of Valvoline becomes invaluable. With their heritage steeped in motor oil and lubricant excellence, Valvoline stands as your ally, ensuring that your motorcycle not only endures the winter's slumber but emerges with a renewed vigour, ready to leap into the spring's embrace. This guide isn't just a set of instructions; it is a narrative of preserving a passion, a testament to the enduring bond between rider and machine.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT MOTORCYCLE OIL

Preparing your motorcycle for winter storage is a critical task for any rider, and selecting the right motorcycle oil is at the heart of this process. As temperatures drop, your motorcycle's engine oil plays a pivotal role in protecting the engine during the long, inactive winter months. Understanding the importance of oil selection and its impact on your motorcycle's health can make a significant difference.

1. CONSIDER THE TYPE OF OIL YOUR MOTORCYCLE REQUIRES

Motorcycles are high-revving machines, and their engines work harder than those in cars, necessitating a specific type of oil. Motorcycle oil is uniquely formulated to cater to these high-performance engines, offering enhanced protection against wear, high temperatures, and deposits.

During winter storage, the oil in your motorcycle's engine needs to provide a protective coating to internal components. This is crucial because, over time, oil can break down, lose its viscosity, and become less effective at lubricating and protecting the engine. The right oil will maintain its protective qualities even when the bike is not in use, guarding against rust and corrosion that can occur in the engine.

2. CONSIDER THE TEMPERATURES

In addition to its protective qualities, the oil you choose should be suitable for the temperatures your motorcycle will be exposed to during storage. In colder climates, a lower-viscosity oil might be preferable as it remains more fluid at lower temperatures, ensuring that when you start the bike after winter, the oil can circulate efficiently without causing undue stress on the engine.

APPLYING MOTORCYCLE LUBRICANT

The ritual of applying lubricant to your motorcycle as you prepare it for winter storage is a critical step in preserving its integrity and ensuring its readiness for the next riding season. Lubrication goes beyond mere maintenance; it is a protective embrace for your bike's most vulnerable parts. Focus on:

- Chain: Regular lubrication of the chain is essential to maintain its flexibility and prevent rust, ensuring smooth transmission of power from the engine to the wheels.
- Operating cables: Lubricating the operating cables helps to preserve their smooth movement and responsiveness, critical for controlling the motorcycle's functions.
- Clutch: Proper lubrication of the clutch mechanism ensures smooth engagement and disengagement, crucial for effective gear shifting.
- Gear change assemblies: Keeping the gear change assemblies lubricated is key to achieving seamless gear transitions and maintaining the longevity of the gearbox.
- Brake lever pins: Lubricating the brake lever pins is important for maintaining the smooth operation of the brake levers, ensuring reliable and responsive braking performance.

These are the lifelines of your motorcycle's operation. A generous application of high-quality motorcycle lubricant on these components is vital. It forms a barrier against rust and corrosion, enemies that lurk during the inactive months of winter.

Moreover, lubricating these parts aids in maintaining their flexibility and function. It is not just about applying the lubricant; it is a proactive measure to prevent seizing and stiffness when spring arrives. The right lubricant will also repel moisture, a crucial factor since even in a covered storage area, ambient moisture can be a silent destroyer.

Be safe and ride often.
